MADISON STREET PAVEMENT. The special committee reported on the Madison street pavement matter, as follows: The paving of Madison street from the Mem-phis and Charleston railroad depot to Main street is immediately necessary, an indispen-sable necessity to the health of the city and commercial convenience of the people. The committee recommend that measures be adopted at once, looking to the prompt improvement of that portion of Madison street near the bayon; that the same be laid with stone, according to the plans and specifications of the engineer, and that the same be adopted as a basis for bids in their recent advertisements for this work. The committee also recommended entarging the sidewalk from the bayon to the nilroad depot, etc. On motion of Mr. Galloway, all bids for

Result of the Labors of the International Congress-Important Recommendations-What is Expected of the Weather Bureau of the United States.

The international meteorological congress, lazy, worthless, political class of negroes, who recently convened at Rome, terminated its never work but are deadbeats wherever labors, after a brief and rather hurried session, by referring much of the business for which it was convened to the discretion of trious, thrifty colored man is needed in the committee originated by the congress. The south, where he can live with more case and decisions of the congress itself have not been, therefore, numerous. The meeting was large, with quite a general enthusiasm on the subject of international meteorology. The congress but to remain at home; and we advise the of international meteorology. The congress has recommended that for each country daily synoptic weather-charts be made for sludy, is has has been the daily practice for the United States since 1870; that storm-tracks should be traced; weather notices given to the danger involved to the public health in farmers; winds, temperatures, etc., studied the removal of the Nicolson pavement on Madison street, and replacing it with stone, at all stations compared with each other; the this season of the year, I have the honor to submit the following:

The sanitary condition of this street at present is perhaps worse than any other in the city, owing to the fact that so much of the procedures, as has been long the customary plan on this side of the the city, owing to the fact that so much of Atlantic. THE EXODUS.

What a Resident of Wyandotte, Kansas Knows About the Condition and Prospects of the Colored Emigrants in Kansas-The Southern Colored Refugees

In a Hopeless and Helpless Condition But few Colored People Now En Route for the Zululand of Kansas-The Season for Emigration is Over.

The emigration to Zululand, Kassas, of the olored people of the lower Mississippi valley from Louisiana and Mississippi, has about ceased. That land of Kansas, which, according to accounts given to the colored peo ple, was flowing with milk and honey, turns out to be the very opposite—a land where it requires money and very hard work to get along successfully. Its polar climate in win-ter does not suit the colored race, which flourishes only in tropical or semi-tropica lands.

Dr. E. P. Bates, a former citizen of Memphis, but who for several years has been a resident of Wyandotte, Kansas, was in the city yesterday. He gives a gloomy picture of the condition and prospects of the colored emigrants now in Missouri and Kansas. Says the doctor: "The sickest people in existence are the exodus-darkies now in Kansas. The people of Kansas, a thrifty, hard working white race, do not look with kindness upon the influx of black people, that for time threatened to flood the land of Jol Brown. The arrival of squads of squalic darkies at first was somewhat of a novelty and people traveled for miles inland to th river towes in order to see the genuice southern darky and talk to him about troubles, trials and tribulations which he passed through down in Dixie. Curiosity however soon gave way to jealousy as larger crowds of deluded negroes arrived. The emigrants were out of money, without clothing, had nothing to eat, in fact they were paupers or tramps in the land of white men. But few extended any sympathy toward the colored brother. He was looked upon as a laborer coming in contact with the white

Dr. Bates states that the emigrating negro who now takes passage for Kansas has a poor show unless he is provided with means to sustain himself and family for at least eighteen months. It is too late in the season for him to plant a crop; consequently nothing could be produced to contribute to his larder until another season, and the time to elapse before that crop could be grown and made ready to market would be at least a year and a balf. If an emigrant moves on to a new piece of ground he must have money sufficient to buy boards for his fences, as rail timber is not among the productions of Kanaas except in isolated localities. Then, too, the dangers of grasshopper hordes and other destructive elements are to be encountered, and any emigrant raks a big chance for starvation by going on a Kansas tour, unless well provided for as previously stated. The emigration has about ceased for the present, and but few emigrants can be found on upward-bound boats voyaging to Zululand. Those who are not too lazy and thriftless have gone to work in the cotton and corn fields of the south, and splendid crops are assured for this season. Mississippi and Louisiana, the soil of Kansas is barren indeed; it requires hard work there to bring forth crops, but in the bottom lands of the south all you have to do with the earth is to tickle it with a hoe, then it will laugh with a harvest. Those colored people who are dissatisfied with everything will go to Kansas. Well, let them go; it is their business; and, if they regret it, they can blame but themselves. It would be a good result if the south could get rid of the comfort than he could at any point north. We advise the industrious colored man not to lazy, no account darky to leave as soon as possible for Kansas, or any other northwest-ern State where he believes the people will support him in luxury and receive him with open arms because he is a refugee on the ex-odus raid. Many simple-minded and hardposed upon by unprincipled white men, who endeavored to induce them to emigrate to Kun-
